EDUCATION WEEK AT THE SCHOOLS

Attorney Roy I. Carson Gives An Address This Morning On "The American Constitution" to High School Students

HIS TALK INSTRUCTIVE

Appointed By the Washington County Bar Association—On Monday Members of the Sociability Class Gave Addresses to Student Body

This is Education Week throughout the country and is being recognized as such by the schools of the land, Charleroi being no exception. This morning Attorney Roy I. Carson made an address before the High School Assembly, which convened at 8:40 o'clock, taking for his subject theme "The American Constitution." The address of the lawyer, who was appointed by the Washington County Bar association, was interesting and instructive.

Monday morning members of the Sociability class of the High school gave addresses to the student body on educational subjects, such as "Military and changing of the old order to the new" which were replete with information and instructive withal.

Prof. Thomas L. Pollock, superintendent of schools, said this morning that it was his intention to formally open the Junior High school this Educational week, but that it was impossible for the electricians to get the lights installed in time. He said that it is hoped to have them installed in the course of two or three weeks or in time for the opening of the basketball season.

GIVE TO THE RED CROSS

While the workers are laboring in the interests of the Red Cross movement, it is well to remember that it is your duty to give in accordance with your financial condition. There are few, if any, who cannot afford to give a dollar, and in the aggregate, these dollars will sum a total considerable amount.

On the other hand there are a number who, while giving could donate more than they are. It is to be hoped now that the time is short until the end of the drive, that the local Chapter will be able to report its going "over the top." This will be easy of accomplishment if every person does his duty.

High among the season's social events will be placed the Entertainment and Dance held last night in the Masonic rooms by the members of Charleroi Chapter, No. 122. Order of Eastern Star, which was very largely attended, there being approximately 300 present.

The affair was a benefit, the proceeds to go towards the payment of the hospital fund, pledged by the Chapter, and the committee in charge feels highly gratified at the outcome of its plans.

The spacious rooms were filled to capacity with guests who were entertained during the first part of the evening by a fine program of music and readings. There were thirteen numbers on the program, all of which were much enjoyed. The following are those who kindly contributed their talents to the evening's success: Mrs. Della Jacobs and Miss Ruth Hall, piano solo; reading, Miss Hampton of Waynesburg; vocal solo,

Father And Son Hurt In Auto Mishap

Frank Emanuel, 39 years old, of near Finleyville, and his son, Joseph, aged 14, were badly injured yesterday morning at 9 o'clock when the touring car in which they were riding went over an embankment on a country road now used as a detour between Library and Castle Shannon.

Emanuel suffered a broken collar bone and severe cuts and bruises, while his son sustained a probable fracture of the left forearm and cuts on his head. The car overturned and they were pinned beneath it. Had it not been for the arrival of motorists immediately after the accident both victims would likely have perished, either from loss of blood or exposure. Emanuel's son managed to free himself owing to the fact that he was small. Though bleeding from injuries he was attempting to free his father from the wreckage when Victor Versucci, of New Eagle, and David Gilsey, of Monongahela, who were enroute to Pittsburgh, happened along a few minutes after the mishap and gave assistance. They succeeded in raising the car so as to effect Emanuel's removal to their machine, a closed car, where both were wrapped in blankets and rushed to the office of a physician at Castle Shannon. They received medical attention and later were taken to a Pittsburgh hospital. It is thought that the father suffered internal injuries of a serious nature. The car was very badly damaged.

A MURDER TRIAL CAUSES COMMOTION

Material witnesses for the commonwealth against James Scott, the colored man on trial for the murder of Chief of Police George Rae of West Newton on the night of September 16, last, scored heavily for the state at the hearing which was resumed yesterday morning in the court room of Judge William T. Dom at Greensburg.

Henry Evans, colored, one of the party of four including Scott, who were stopped by the Chief of Police Judge Dom sustained his appeal and questioned regarding their actions told the court that Chief Rae on stopping them inquired as to what they had on their person and then searched him. He stated that the officer then approached Scott and asked "What have you got on you?" and he then heard the shot and saw the officer stagger and fall to the ground while Scott took to his heels and ran across the street and escaped in the darkness.

Attorney Shaffer, representing the defendant, took exceptions to the manner of the commonwealth attorney's questioning the witnesses and appealed to the court. Judge Dom stopped proceedings long enough to inform the jurors to disregard the testimony of the witnesses.

DeMarco Gets Draw

With Vicentini In The Waterbury Clash

Cuddy DeMarco staved off Luis Vicentini of Chile in a 12-round bout at Waterbury, Conn., last night, winning a draw as a result of his great defensive battle against the hard hitting South American. The battlers mixed things with such aggressiveness that they repeatedly brought the crowd to its feet with cheers.

Vicentini entered the ring favored to win by a knockout but the bout did not progress through the first round before the spectators realized that the Chilean had met his boxing matter.

DeMarco swarmed over Luis like a lion and as a result of his fighting he weathered the hard punches of his rangy opponent and won a draw.

Considerable feeling was shown by Vicentini in the early stages of the bout, he likely having been enraged at DeMarco's action in taking his 250 forfeit, the Chilean coming in a round and three quarters over the stipulated weight, while DeMarco, weighing 134, was a pound under.

"Red Dog Luis," touted as the hardest puncher in his class, let go several wild swings early in the fight, but DeMarco craftily moved out of range and stabbed him with straight fists to the face. At times DeMarco took the offensive and showed the wilder pling plenty of gloves, the speed of the Charleroi being the most easing seen in Waterbury in a long time.

While there was plenty of clinching as DeMarco tied Vicentini up often, the bout was thrilling from the beginning to end and as it wore into the final rounds the Chilean was visibly chagrined over his inability to meet solidly.

It was the old story of a boxer and puncher and last night the boxer did enough spasmodic fighting to give him an even break.

IS APPROVED

The New York State Athletic Commission yesterday placed its official stamp of approval on the Tom Gibbons-Kid Norfolk, 15-round match at Madison Square Garden Tuesday, December 9 after every available heavyweight outside of Jack Dempsey was considered as an opponent for Gibbons. This match is the headliner of the Christmas fund show, the net proceeds of which will be distributed among the poor of New York.

The board of deputies reported on the weights and condition of the six contenders in the featherweight elimination tournament. Each contender has been visited by a deputy and his weight and condition made a matter of record. Some of the contenders are over the recognized featherweight limit of 25 pounds but the boarders convinced the deputies that they could get down to 125, the stipulated weight before 2 o'clock Friday afternoon, the time set for the official weighing in.

The commission ruled that a Fitts to the face. At times DeMarco took the offensive and showed the wilder pling plenty of gloves, the speed of the Charleroi being the most easing seen in Waterbury in a long time.

FEUNTE BOUT

Fred Fulton Minnesota heavy weight, has signed for a decision battle against the state of California. The big plasterer, dejected and almost on the verge of tears was brought before Chief Prosecutor Burton Fitts of the district attorney's office at Los Angeles yesterday afternoon to explain his part in Monday night's boxing program at Culver City, where, according to ringsiders, he "quit cold" to Tony Fuente, "Mexican Wild Cat," after only 30 seconds of fighting.

After a lengthy questioning by Fitts, Fulton was charged with violation of the state boxing law. The offense is a misdemeanor and punishable by a fine of from $100 to $1,000, or imprisonment of 30 days to one year. The fighter was released on $1,000 bond after confessing, according to Fitts, that he had accepted 25 per cent of the gate receipts at the Culver City fight.

"I have a weak heart," the big boxer said. "Fuente's first blow had me groggy. When he hit me over the heart I thought I'd lie down for a fine count to get a rest but I guess I missed a count. I did the best I could and no one can do any more than that."

The Featherweights Start Fight For The Title On Friday

The campaign to produce a successor to the world's featherweight title vacated by Johnny Dundee through the veteran Italian's own admission of his inability to make the class weight, will be undertaken with the sanction of the State Athletic Commission in Madison Square Garden Friday night when six accepted contenders for the championship to compete in the first of the series of elimination bouts. Three 10-round matches are scheduled for decision and they will be followed three weeks later by a 12-round semi-final. Three bouts which combine to make one of the most attractive boxing cards held this season. Each contest on the program is a "star bout" in itself. Danny Kramer, the Philadelphia southpaw who withdrew from a match to compete in the tournament, will face Mike Dundee, Rock Island, Ill., contender; Lew Paluso, Salt Lake City protege of Jack Dempsey, will face Jose Lombardo, Panama boxer, and Louis (Kid) Kaplan, Meriden, Conn., whose persistent challenges to Dundee ended with the Italian's declaration of his inability to defend the title, will engage Bobby Garcia, Camp Holobird, Md., featherweight.

That an unusual amount of interest centers around the three bouts is indicated by the advance requests for ticket reservations. Promoter Tex Rickard is confidently anticipating his first capacity gathering of the indoor boxing season. The managers and followers of the boxers are ordering tickets in blocks of from 75 to 100 in frequent trips to the Garden, the latest to submit his application being Max (Boo Boo) Hoff, manager of Kramer, who has placed with Rickard an order for 75 choice ringside seats for the Philadelphia's home town audience. The regular patron to the Garden also is early with his application for a ringside seat according to Rickard, and the indications are that every available pasteboard will be sold. The participants in the tournament must under the rules of the State Athletic commission which govern the event, be in New York or easily accessible to the city, by today, five days in advance of the date for the bouts. Their New York training will be inspected at regular intervals by representatives of the commission, who will report back to Chairman George E. Brower as to the condition of the boxers. Chairman Brower has announced that any boxer judged out of condition or overweight will be denied the privilege of competing. In such an emergency a substitute will be named from among the list of alternates approved by the commission.

Bucs Are Wise In Getting Youth And Speed, Says Hendricks

From some remarks made by Manager Jack Hendricks of the Cincinnati club, it is to be inferred that he approves the big trade recently made by the Pirate management with a view to getting more speed and hitting strength, and thinks that Berney Dreyfuss and Bill McKechnie made a wise move, for he declares that youth and speed are necessary to the success of any ball club. He is going to make a play for those qualities on his aged to crowd into fourth place last season. He has already added two young stars to the Red lineup in the form of Hughie Critz and Charley Jake Daubert, is not exactly a "spring chicken."

A Cincinnati dopester says Hendricks is one of the closest students of the game in the country, with an exceptionally keen knowledge of the long trip to the coast, from which he returned early last week. He found that several of the alleged stars of years' standing whom he does not know all about. During the world's series Hendricks had a conference with a minor league owner who was anxious to sell the Cincinnati club a first baseman. The Red leader listened to the praises of this athlete, with full accounts of his hitting and fielding ability, for half an hour without comment. Then he asked quietly, "How old is he?" The owner replied, "He was about 26 years of age." "I Sloterbeck's Garage, Fayette City, fear that you are mistaken," said and we will tell you how we can take Hendricks. "I happen to know that he is 32 years old, and I do not expect to build up my team with players of that age." The figure was hotly denied by the owner, who was attempting to make the sale, but an investigation of the record books proved that Hendricks was exactly right.

What Money Can and Can't Buy

Many of us are not fortunate enough to have expensive jewels and silver.

But all of us have keepsakes which we treasure and which money couldn't replace.

There are all kinds of valuables, but one place for them all—a safe deposit box at this bank.

There's no stopping 'em!

It's a clear field with nothing in front but the goal posts!

Football or merchandising—it's the same story—you can't stop a man or a product that has the stuff to come through.

Chesterfield is making gain after gain—like a swift, smashing drive to a touchdown.

Everywhere men are changing by thousands to Chesterfield. Why? For the best of all reasons—taste! That's what convinced smokers the country over.

TWO INNOVATIONS.

Charleroi is the "hub" of two innovations, an essay contest and a window trimming contest, launched by the business men of the borough, and in which a number of people will take part. Reference to the success of all innovations in the past as they reflect Charleroi, augurs for the success of the two in question.

In the Essay contest students will tell the advantages accruing from doing holiday trading in the borough; and the other, the Window Trimming contest, in which the local merchants will display to their best advantage representative goods to prospective customers.

In the Essay contest it will be interesting to note just what will be the reasons ascribed of "why the public should do its trading in Charleroi," and doubtless the thoughts emanating from the brains of the students in this regard will be refreshing as they are full of salient points in a proposition in which the people are so vitally interested just at the onset of the holiday season.

It is a well-known fact that window trimming is a very important auxiliary to the pursuance of a successful business. In the large cities, which practice has more and more come in vogue in the smaller places, it is conceded that the proper trimming of windows is an important leverage on trade. The more attractive and the more artistically arranged the windows are, the greater the incentive for the customer to enter the establishment and make a purchase.

Charleroi merchants are not remiss in this Window Trimming matter. Now, that a contest is to be held in which prizes will be awarded on the merits of the "best displayed" windows, it too, as in the case of the Essay contest, will be interesting to note just what the merchants can do when the exigencies of the case demand it. That they will outdo themselves in artistic effect, is prophetic. However, the rivalry in the proposition will be of the most friendly nature, and while all of them cannot be prize winners, all will be magnanimous to the extent of tendering their congratulations to those prize winners who have the "best trimmed windows."

And the result of this contest foresees in the future even more interest on the part of the business men to properly display what the interior of their stores contain through the window trimming method.

The successful merchant of today includes window trimming, not as an expense of his business, not a liability, but a resource. Too much interest in this important proposition cannot, we take it, be evinced by any one or all of them, for the artistic trimming of windows is a trade producer for an emporium of whatsoever nature.

POLITICS IN HAWAII.

The picture of political conditions in Hawaii given by a writer for the Review of Reviews indicates that native Hawaiians of both sexes have a keen interest in local politics under American rule, but that there is something of cynicism in their attitude not unexpected in a people who have lost their independence and become a small, insignificant territorial holding of a great nation. For example, a member of the League of Women Voters (native) thus expressed herself recently from a soapbox: "Why do these candidates come down here with all that bunk about loving the Hawaiians? They are four-flushers and liars. Why should anybody love us any more? We have no land left." A white candidate who knew how to please and rouse old patriotic emotions with his slogan, "Hawaii for the Hawaiians," is thus quoted: "What answer would you Hawaiians make to your ancestors if they should come back and ask you what you had done with your land? You would have to say we turned it over to the sugar planters' association."

To remind the Hawaiians of their real and imagined wrongs can do no good, but it would appear that candidates find remunerative "politics" in the practice. When feeling is rather dangerously stirred up, we read that a native named J. K. Mokumala, described as a fellow of infinite humor, gets up at street corners in Honolulu with a view to allay passion and invite philosophical resignation. One of his speeches, a truly remarkable specimen, is thus quoted: "Have a heart. We got to walk careful. I don't dare tell you vote straight, fear you pull me down. The Republican he say best man. Democrat he say best man. Not tell same story. We got to walk careful. We got have a heart. We got to walk one eye and look straight. But we must have a heart. Everybody got have heart."

CRUDULOUS STILL.

It seems that the revival of Barrie's charming fantasia, "Peter Pan," has been found disappointing by those who discuss the subject in print. It is stated that the old glamour cannot be recaptured. No definite reasons are given, but it has been suggested that less credulous generation has come forward in twenty years, a generation which cannot take fairies, pirates and ogres seriously even for an hour or two in a theater. On the contrary, belief in all of these is now stronger than ever, among grown-ups at least, according to the New York Times, which with mock gravity observes:

"Any number of people today believe that you have only to pronounce the proper incantation and the millennium will come flooding through the window. The elfin host beats its airy wings around our heads like the spirits around Faust. They are all there: the Ku Klux fairy, the Vitamine fairy, the Fifteen-Minutes-a-Day fairy, the Government-Ownership fairy, the Apple Week fairy, the Eighteenth Amendment fairy, the Censorship fairy; of whom each one by itself is competent to rebuild the world to the heart's desire. We do believe in pirates. We believe in international financiers who put things over on us, in wicked diplomats who bring war upon us. We do indeed believe in ogres. We believe in Roman Catholics who drill secretly in their cathedrals for the overthrow of the Republic, in Jews and negroes who menace the spirit of our institutions, in numerous other goblins, kobolds, bogles, trolls, jinnns and afrites exhibiting the wrong cephalic index."

River Bandit Specializes in Women for Ransom

Galatz, Roumania.—Operating up and down the Danube river in a powerful motorboat armed with a machine gun, Terenti, notorious pirate, is still at large despite the united efforts of both Roumanian and Hungarian police to catch him. One of his late adventures was to fight his way through a company of Roumanian soldiers near Braila.

Terenti makes a specialty of capturing for ransom, and he prefers to gather in women and children of well-to-do families. He shows consideration to the poor fishermen and farmers along the river, who are friendly to him as a result, and warn him of the activities of the police. He recently found two girls who had been bathing in the river near Galatz and whisked them away in his speedy boat before they could make an outcry.

DISASTER!

If a disaster befell Charleroi, Washington, Claysville, Bentleyville, Monongahela, or any other town in Washington county tonight and in the darkness hundreds of people found themselves, shelterless, naked and unfed in the midst of circumstances that we have no words to describe, what would be your first hope?

The relief sources of these communities might be paralyzed. Probably those who would be most active in caring for others would find themselves stricken and helpless. Tidings of the catastrophe would be flashed far and wide and sympathetic people everywhere would wish that they might contribute to their relief, but hours and days would of necessity pass before that relief could be organized and brought to you.

What then would be your first hope? Would it not be that in the midst of your necessity, the tidings would flash to you, "The American Red Cross is on the way; it is bringing food, clothing, blankets, medical relief and trained workers, who have learned how in the experience of a multitude of such disasters; cheer up and hold fast; the Red Cross is coming."

It is that message that has brought comfort and courage to thousands stricken and that out of instant readiness, thereby saving thousands of precious lives.

If disaster struck this community tonight the American Red Cross would be on the job at once. How many communities it has saved from hopeless abandonment, how many families have been re-gathered that might otherwise have drifted apart in the grim touch of tragedy, how many human lives have been snatched from pitiless death there are no trustworthy figures to relate.

It is simply the story of an experience that has taught both means and method, an experience that emphasizes the necessity for preparedness, which is the greatest element in relief, and if for no other reason the readiness of the American Red Cross to serve in quick emergency should commend it to the enthusiastic support of the nation. In the field of disaster the Red Cross knows only human necessity; it makes no distinction of race, color or creed, but answers merely the call of that human suffering which knits all men together in the bonds of a common helplessness.

Throughout the land the American Red Cross has established disaster relief centers, so situated geographically that speed in relief may become the essential feature. This community is one of the centers—your local Red Cross chapter.

We know that no human ingenuity can prevent calamity; its peculiar tragedy lies in the fact of its unexpectedness, but we owe it alike to ourselves and to our fellow men to see to it that relief stands ready on the heels of circumstance.

Your membership this year in the American Red Cross will make its organization more substantial, its equipment more efficient, its readiness more assured and your contribution, small though it be in itself, will help to augment the fund that keeps relief always ready.

Who knows, it may be yourself to whom that dollar or those dollars will come back, a winged messenger of human sympathy, bringing relief and help.

Today and Yesterday

FEW youngsters to-day ever saw a horse-hair sofa. They wouldn't know what to do with a fire taper, carpet stretcher, or coal oil lamp. They couldn't braid rags into a rug, or wind yarn without tangling. But they know the how and why of typewriters, phonographs, radios, telephones, automobiles; what happens when a push of the button gives light, or a kodak's flash fixes their image on paper.

Their education is as modern as the advertisements they see. They have no more use for the lamp and chimney of yesterday than you for the wick and tallow of the day before.

Advertisements induce such progress. They urge wide use that means improvement. They help you lift the out-of-date into the attic—rid you of the water buckets and soap kettles of slavery. They bring late improvements within your reach.

Read the advertisements regularly. Keep alert to the new.

Without advertising, you would never know a product's worth until you had bought it.

SUICIDE NOT GIVEN CREDENCE

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 19.—The suicide theory was practically abandoned in the Sheatsley furnace mystery today.

Convinced that Rev. C. V. Sheatsley's wife was murdered and her body stuffed in on the coals of the parsonage furnace, police and Prosecutor John R. King continued their investigation.

King was careful to point out that he now believes a solution to the mystery lies outside the pastor's family. Rev. Sheatsley and his four children have furnished acceptable alibis showing that Mrs. Sheatsley's body was placed in the furnace during their absence, King said.

In abandoning the suicide theory the county prosecutor explained that there was never a trace of insanity in Mrs. Sheatsley's family and that it would have been physically impossible for her to crawl through the 14-inch square of the furnace door and deliberately pull the door shut upon herself while the flames played about her body.

The only theory which authorities would make public was that a degenerate may have slipped into the parsonage between 1:45 and 3:15 p. m., Monday, when all except the pastor's wife were absent. He may have attacked Mrs. Sheatsley and thrust her dead or unconscious body into the furnace.

In an attempt to find substantiation of this theory, King today again questioned E. E. Brideweiser, a student at Capital university, where the pastor has a Bible class, and C. O. Strader, deliveryman for a Columbus bakery.

The student knocked at the parsonage Monday afternoon at 3 p. m., the approximate time authorities believe Mrs. Sheatsley was put in the fire-box. He received no response, but said he heard some one at the furnace in the basement.

Strader delivered a loaf of bread at the back door at 2:15, received no answer to his knock, and placed the bread inside the door on the kitchen floor. Strader said he did not notice the odor of burning flesh which permeated the neighborhood between 3 and 3:30 p. m.

"It is our hope," said King, "that Brideweiser or Strader may have seen someone in the vicinity of the parsonage."

The Sheatsley family was excused from all questioning today to attend Mrs. Sheatsley's funeral which was to be held at 2 p. m., from the fashionable Lutheran church of which her husband is pastor.

The two boys, Milton, 20, and Clarence, 16, may be recalled later authorities said.

Some Improvement.
Father, did God make me?
Yes, my child.
And did He make you, too?
Yes.
Well, he's doing better work now, isn't he?

Scratching where it itches, while in society, and getting away with it, is an art that few possess.

tunity to earn money for Yuletide, where all the world is akin. Competent judges will interpret their views of the merits of the essays in the awards, and they will be given strictly on their value from the subject selected.

No little interest is manifest in the Window Trimming contest, in which practically all the merchants of Charleroi are expected to take part. The windows will be trimmed and closed, and opened for public view on the night of Wednesday, December 3, at 7 o'clock. As this contest is in the line of an innovation in the borough, it is expected that public inspection of them will be large. The prizes to be awarded will be $25 in gold for first prize; $15 in gold, second prize; $10 in gold, third prize; and $5 in gold, fourth prize. The prizes will be awarded not on the basis of the suitability of the window for trimming, but on the "merits of the artistry shown," or in other words, "the best trimmed window."

As an added feature, through the Chamber of Commerce, and with a great accommodation to out-of-town shoppers, on Saturday, December 13, and each day thereafter until Christmas, all these people trading at the Charleroi stores can have their goods of whatsoever nature, whether wearing apparel or otherwise, checked free of charge at the Municipal building.

Part Vitamins Play in Human Organism

In writing of the fate of vitamins in the body, the editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association says it has been discovered that they are stored up in the liver. The conclusion that vitamins are highly essential to the welfare of the living organism, he says, as so many recent investigations seem to indicate beyond peradventure, is based on the observation of nutritive failure and the appearance of so-called deficiency diseases when some of the food factors referred to are missing from the diet.

"It may almost be regarded as a corollary," he continues, "that, under conditions of a deficit in vitamin-bearing products, the body itself will become impoverished in these physiologically potent factors. For several types of vitamins evidence is now available that this is actually the case. It has been found by Steenbock, Sell and Nelson that the liver is an important center of fat-soluble vitamin storage, varying in its content of this substance with the ration fed. When the diet of the animal becomes poor in vitamin A, however, the liver becomes correspondingly depleted. The depletion of the same organ in vitamin E when the animal is deprived of an adequate supply of this factor has been demonstrated by Osborne and Mendell."

Vicar Shied at Sight of First Locomotive

A very small locomotive, said to be the first ever constructed, is preserved in London. It was built by the famous engineer, Murdoch, and is 14 inches high and 19 inches long. It has two driving wheels and a front steering wheel fitted with a tiller handle.

This locomotive ran trials at Redruth in 1784. The first experiment was in Murdoch's own house, and then it was tried on the road, when, according to all accounts, it outpaced the inventor.

One night Murdoch went out with his locomotive to an avenue leading to the church about a mile from the town. The engine started off and the inventor went after it. Soon distant shouts of terror were heard. When he came up to his machine he found the vicar in great fear of the hissing, spitting little demon.

At this time Murdoch was in the employ of the firm of Boulton & Watt, and when they heard of the experiments they feared that Murdoch's energies might be distracted from the business of stationary engines. They persuaded him to drop the project and he never took up the subject again.

That Dropped Aspirate

In Latin and the languages, such as French, derived from it, the "h" is not pronounced, its omission being due to a slightly different throat formation in different races. For centuries after the Norman conquest Latin and Norman French were the official tongues of England, and the aspirate, therefore, was never sounded. With the gradual rise of English as a national language, the "h" came into fashion, though even today one may occasionally find an old-fashioned clergyman who clings to the ancient tradition and speaks with conservative correctness of an "humble man." In the main, however, the dropping of the "h" was left to the less-educated classes, particularly those in London, which, as the court and official center, had, of course, been more affected by the French nonaspiration than the more truly English north country.—Nashville Banner.

BONES FAIL TO RESPOND

Philadelphia, Nov. 19.—"Don't fail me now, bones," Clarence White, colored laborer, said today, "I've been waiting for you for a long time."

Policeman Simons heard the bones clicking. Clarence and the bones were arraigned before Magistrate O'Connor.

"Crap shooting is no good for you; it brings you bad luck; it gets you in trouble," the magistrate told the prisoner.

"Not for me, it don't bring me bad luck, Judge," Clarence replied airily. "For some people it brings bad luck, but for me, gimme my own dice and I have all the luck in the world."

"Here are your dice, Clarence, you are going to take your last long roll," the magistrate said handing the prisoner the pair. "If you have luck, all right. Roll a seven and you go free. If you roll any other number, that's the number of days you are going to serve in prison."

He began a lullaby to the bones. "Keep papa out of jail." "If you ever worked, work now." He blew through his fingers, twisted his wrist and rolled the bones with a snap of the fingers.

The prisoner almost turned white.

"Box cars. They threw me down," he moaned as two dice showed. It meant 12 days in jail, the highest figure the dice could show.

"I believe what you said now, Judge," Clarence said humbly. He took up the bones and dropped them into the waste basket.

"I'll let you go if you take a pledge to stop crap shooting," Magistrate O'Connor said. White agreed and took the pledge willingly.

Gold was probably the first metal to be used by man. Metallic gold was found in the beds of streams. It was used for ornaments before any other metal was discovered. The first metal put to practical use was copper, made into knives and other implements at least 6,000 years ago.

NEBRASKA WILLING TO TAKE CARE OF WORLD WAR ORPHANS

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 19.—Nebraska will support a regional home for orphans of the World War if other states of the region are willing to undertake part of the responsibility. This was indicated by action of the Nebraska department executive committee of the American Legion here recently when it authorized representation at a child welfare conference of Kansas, Arkansas, Texas, Oklahoma and Nebraska Legion officials to be held at Independence, Kansas, this winter.

Whatever detailed plan is adopted will follow closely the national organization program, which calls for regional homes in which orphaned children of the World War veterans will be cared for in an environment which is described by George Withers, chairman of the Legion's national child welfare committee, as "real home with the home atmosphere in evidence—not institutions or orphanages."

The Legion already has two such homes one at Otter Lake, Michigan, in operation and one at Independence,

In regard to one source of financing the Legion regional homes, a resolution was passed at the recent National Convention of the Legion which provided that all sums accruing to the Legion the allotment of adjustment compensation benefits should be used to create a trust fund, the proceeds of which should be utilized only for child welfare work or for the benefit of the disabled veteran. The realization of this source of revenue, which Legion officials declare would be large, hinges upon a second resolution passed at the Convention in which the Legion national legislative committee favored the right of a veteran to assign rights to adjustment compensation benefits to any patriotic organization chartered by Congress.

This will necessitate a change in the adjustment compensation law which at present makes it necessary for the beneficiary to be designated in the application for the policy but the power of assignment will only apply to officially designated patriotic organizations.

Men Drive Cars While Intoxicated

he was intoxicated. The defense attorneys for O'Brien, who was charged with driving a car while intoxicated after an accident, the case is now with the jury.

Donis Pachko, of Donora, who was tried before Judge Cummins Monday afternoon on a charge of operating an automobile while intoxicated, was found guilty, but recommended to the mercy of the court. Another man, Andy Lucko, was in the machine when Pachko was arrested, and the latter alleged that Lucko was driving the machine. He was given the minimum sentence of cost a fine of $200 and ten days in jail.

Nick Kofkas, alias Nick Kalikos, who operates a restaurant in Donora, yesterday morning, entered a plea of guilty to the unlawful possession of liquor. The court was of the opinion that he was another member of the big bootlegging ring at Donora and Judge Cummins sentenced him to pay the costs a fine of $3,000 and to two years in the workhouse. This may be changed to a jail sentence, conditional upon his paying the fine and cost. This is the same sentence given to Peter Schwartz of Donora, who entered a plea of guilty Monday afternoon before Judge Cummins.

Walter William entered a plea of guilty to operating a motor car without consent of the owner before Judge Brownson yesterday afternoon and was sentenced to pay the costs and to serve 40 days in jail, the sentence to date from the time of his commitment, October 12.

Walter P. Chrysler Announces

25 Miles to the Gallon
58 Miles per Hour
5 to 25 Miles in 8 Seconds

With a full sense of the seriousness of the statement—carefully weighing the meaning of every word—Chrysler-Maxwell engineers, without reservation, promise you, in this new Maxwell, performance surpassing in every essential any four-cylinder car in the world today.

To make that sweeping assurance more definite and specific—we promise you in speed, in power, in pliability of power, in swift response, and even more particularly in riding steadiness and comfort, results no four-cylinder car has yet been able to attain.

To go still further into details, the new Maxwell has speed capacities far beyond any car of its type and class, and in the rare instances in which they may have to be used, will register them with an absence of vibration without precedent in four-cylinder construction.

Chrysler-Maxwell engineers have been actuated by the conviction that in addition to its inherent and natural economies, the four-cylinder principle possessed possibilities of power and speed capable of being translated into ease and steadiness which have never been fully developed.

They set out to overcome what have all too readily been accepted in the past as limitations in the four-cylinder engine and to convert these limitations into positive advantages.

No one can doubt that success has crowned their efforts, after even so short an experience as a half-hour's driving demonstration of the car.

Judged by the unusual and extraordinary character of its performance, this Maxwell is literally a new and immeasurably better type of four-cylinder motor car.
